God told Jonah to go to the city of Nineveh and tell the people that God wanted them to repent. But instead of going to Nineveh, Jonah headed for the port of Joppa and got on a ship.

The boat was moving across the Mediterranean Sea to Tarshish – in the opposite direction, as far away from Nineveh that you could go.

God was displeased with Jonah and sent a terrible storm. The wind was so fierce and the waves so big that the boat was about to sink. The frightened sailors threw all the cargo overboard.

The storm continued to get worse. Finally, Jonah confessed to the mariners, 'It's all my fault for I have run away from God and disobeyed Him. Throw me out and it will calm the sea.'

The mariners didn't want to throw Jonah into the water, but the storm continued. So they took Jonah and threw him over the side of the boat into the deep sea. It was their only hope of survival.

But God had prepared a great fish to swallow Jonah and keep him alive. Deep in the belly of this huge fish, Jonah cried out to God for help. He said sorry to God for disobeying Him.

Three days and nights later, the great fish vomited Jonah up onto dry land. God had forgiven him and spared his life.

Once again, God told Jonah to go to Nineveh and warn the people that if they did not repent, then God would destroy their city. This time Jonah obeyed God.
